[From an Arizona Letter.]

Half a Mile Below Ground.

James White, Henry Strole and Capt Baker of the late Confederate army, left Colorado City, May 27th, 1867, on foot, with two pack mules to carry provisions, tools and blankets, for the purpose of prospecting in the San Juan valley for gold. After several weeks travel they reached the San Juan river; but not finding sufficient promise in the sands, they went further west to Grand river; the banks of which were perpendicular rock, two thousand feet high. Both men and animals suffered for water, and it was a day before they could reach the stream which dashed and foamed in the canon. The next morning, Aug 24th, they ascended, and were suddenly assailed by gun shots from a band of Indians. Baker fell at the first fire saying, "Boys, save yourselves." But his comrades fought until he was dead, and then retreated down into the canon.

The consultation which ensued resulted in a decision to go down the river, since to go back was almost sure death from the Indians. So they abandoned the mules and traveled down the stream for about five miles. On each side rose the cold sandstone walls, two thousand feet high, and they waited for dark when only for a single hour in the day did the sun shine into the chasm. They found drift wood and made a raft of sticks and cotton wood, lashing them together with mule ropes, and then lashing on their provisions, floated on in almost Tartarean darkness of that wonderful gulch. Through the long night they clung to the raft as it dashed against rocks or whirled in eddies. At last daylight came, and with it a smoother current. Then they made a landing, ate some of the watersoaked provisions, and made their raft stronger with cedar sticks. Then they embarked and toward afternoon came to the junction where Grand and Green rivers unite to form the Colorado.

At the junction the river is about 750 feet in width, and the walls on either side were nearly a mile high. Above was only to be seen a narrow strip of sky, while the cedars that stood upon the edge of the canon appeared no larger than weeds; and detached pinnacles rose much higher as monuments to memorize the mutiny of mighty waters. Down they floated in the great canon in the daylight, made brief by the shutting out of the sun. They endeavored to avoid the rocks which opposed them, and at night they drew to the foot of the huge wall and stayed till morning. They could not go back, so they floated on, hoping to reach Calville. Four days had passed, when on the afternoon of the 28th of August, an ominous roar was heard ahead, the current became more rapid, a sharp bend was turned, and a foaming waterfall was seen. Nothing could prevent the raft going over. Then Strole stood up with his pole in his hands, while White clung to the logs. The raft leaped into the waters, and White heard the last shriek of his companion, who had been cast off into the seething torrent; with turned head beheld through the mist and spray, his comrade's form toss for a moment in the boiling water and then sink.

Remembering this, and not knowing what yet to expect in that terrible fissure of the earth, the walls of which were now as much as seven thousand feet in height, and seemed to meet almost, and keeping out all of the upper earth, excepting the narrowest ribbon of blue sky, White tied himself to the raft and strengthened the lashings. All the provisions and arms had been lost in going over the waterfall, and after that came a succession of rapids, blocked up by the masses of rocks over which the raft was driving and tumbling and sometimes completely submerged. In one of these the logs in the raft became separated at the the upper end and spread out fanwise; but White, after being thrown into the water, regained his place and fastened them. Soon afterwards he reached the mouth of the Colorado Chiquito, which joins the Colorado proper at right angles and creates a small eddy or whirlpool. In this whirling of waters White, clinging desperately to the raft, was tossed to and fro for hours, and only when most unconscious, found that he had been released from the grasp of the liquid arms, and was once more floating down between the lofty perpendicular walls.

Four days passed since he had tasted food. Nothing had been seen but the foaming waters, the blank, bare walls, and the thread of the sky beyond. For more than a week he had been at the bottomn of a trench, a mile in depth. Exhausted and hungered, he even sought to suck his own blood, but the aspect of his shriveled, blistered arm frightened him. It was then that he came by a flat strip of shore with bushes growing on it. Here he stopped, devoured some green leaves and pods, and again resumed his journey. On the 11th day he was taken on shore by some Yampais Indians, who would probably have killed him had not one of them interfered and protected him. This humane savage gave the voyager meat and mizquite beans to eat, and after a short rest White tottered to his raft and floated downward.

Three days afterwards he was aroused from stupor by voices. Strong arms were thrown around him, and bearded faces looked pitying upon him. He was tended and cared for by the Mormons of this place, and with his strong constitution, soon regained health, and has no desire to leave the spot where good Samaritans ministered unto him. He is in good health and doing well, and does not wish to renew his experience.

Senator Morton, in his speech at Wilmington, Ohio, a few days ago put the case thus tersely, in his reference to the two political parties of the country:

"Of the two parties now appealing for public support, one proudly points to its record; the other implores the past to be forgotten. One expects confidence to be placed in its promises for the future, because of its conduct in the days gone by; the other asks to be trusted on its simple professions, regardless of the lessons of experience Democracy retains its old character and instincts, yet asks that the fruits of its faith during a great national crisis shall be yet kept out of sight. It does not invoke the pleasures of memory, but invites the blessing of oblivion.

The New York Citizen (Democratic) is greatly disgusted at Pendleton's nomination and asserts that Ohio need not send any delegates to the next democratic National Convention until she has redeemed herself from republican rule." It adds: "It may be pleasant for Mr Pendleton to be nominated and be defeated over again in his attempts to secure the position of governor, but it will never help the triumph of democracy. If the men of Ohio want to assist the republicans, they may join that organization openly and not try to serve it under the guise of democrats."

The Cleveland Plaindealer says: "Rosecrans is in full accord with the democratic party on its leading principles." The Columbus Crisis says, "Gen Rosecrans is in open opposition to the democracy and the democratic platform, which is the expression of the Democratic people of Ohio."—"When doctors disagree," &c.

A New Use for Electricity.

We learn that the Lyceum of the Prince Imperial at Vannes, France, is about to experiment with a supposed discovery of Dr Pagidi, to the effect that physically and morally weak children may be brought by the influence of electricity to a taste and ability for study and work; that by this wonderful agent, their whole nature, so to speak, is changed—the listless and dull becoming bright and inquiring; the indolent, and, by consequence, the vicious, becoming active and useful. This, certainly, is a most important discovery, supposing it to be as stated, and it will be a great relief to parents whose children happen to have been born fools to think that in such a very simple way the fools can be reformed. We take it, that when the process shall be fully understood and perfected, an electrical machine will be indispensable in every school room and in every family. Of course, it will take the place of the rod, and there will be no more scolding and ill temper. In short, we can imagine no more useful apparatus, whether in the family, the school room, the college, or, we may add in the church, for we assume that the process acts as beneficently upon adults as upon children, and we see how easy it will now be to reform mankind. Missionaries can make short work with the heathen; and Gen Grant need only send a good supply of machines out to the plains, when the Indians will fall into a most peaceable frame of mind, and quietly sit at the feet of the broadbrims.

If the discovery had been made during the days of slavery, a planter might have given his darkies a good shock in the morning, and they would have gone to work without the least necessity of an overseer. But we see a triumph in the immediate future of the most important nature, for it is one which cannot fail to put an end to many of our difficulties. We refer to the application of this reformatory process to the democratic party. Difficult as it may be, let us imagine the leaders of the rank and file subjected to a series of electric shocks, and then, possessed of enlarged mental powers and clothed in their right mind, declaring that the national debt must be paid, and that America is truly a free and happy land. Such a conversion must be counted among the many wonders of this wonderful age, for which we cannot too much thank those ingenious people, the French. It will be, as Burns said of the immortality of the soul, "almost too good news to be true."—Tribune.

Here are the ingredients of the chewing gum which young Americans masticate with such velocity and apparent satisfaction. The gum is made of certain parts of gum arabic, gum tragacanth, a small quantity of fresh resin and fat. The fat used is not lard (that being too expensive) but it is a substence expressed from the bodies of hogs, cats, dogs and other animals found dead in the streets of cities.

INDEPENDENT.

Auto-Biography of a Shaker.

We are under obligations to the publishers, C. Van Benthuysen & Sons, of Albany, N. Y. for a copy of a neatly printed little work under the foregoing title, the production of T. W. Evans, of Mt. Lebanon, Columbia county, N Y. It contains a brief sketch of the life of Mr Evans, who has proved himself to be a man of much more than ordinary ability, and who is now one of the leading, if not the most prominent personage of that little known people, the Shakers. Mr E is a native of England, and came to this country when about 12 years of age, in 1820. Always inspired by a radical turn of mind he was ever on the look out for instrumentalities to improve society, and it appeared to him that socialism would lead the human race to the goal of happiness, if it were adopted everywhere. Living in the state of New York at the time he heard of a community at Massillon, in 1830, and so zealous was he to be connected with it that he walked 800 miles to reach the object of his search. Arriving here he found Dr. Underhill at the head of the community, who was surrounded by a large number of congenial people, some of infidel and others of professing Christian proclivities. The association went down about two months after Mr. Evans became connected with it. After that he went to England a short time, and on returning to America he came in contact with a class of peculiar people, strangers to him, but a brief period convinced him that he had found the much desired place, and has remained there ever since, now 38 years. It was a Shaker community to which he allied himself, and now he is the leader intellectually, of that persuasion in this country.

In this brief sketch of his life Mr E refers to those active days of his life, now some 25 years ago, when his brother, George Evans, a publisher, if not a printer, commenced the issuing of a paper in New York, called Young America, the principal object of reform of which it was the organ was land reform—that is, against land monopoly. We well recollect reading the vigorous and trenchant articles of that paper with no small degree of interest; and the idea it inculcated was then a most popular one in the democratic party, many of whose leading men, and a very large portion of the editors of the party advocated the doctrine with a zeal and earnestness becoming the great importance of the question discussed. The result of that movement, Mr E claims is, that nearly all the states have homestead laws. They also labored for other reforms, some twelve altogether, among which were the overthrow of the U S bank, abolition of slavery and of imprisonment for debt, equal rights for women, &c.

A large portion of the work is taken up with the writers views of the tenets of the Shakers, who have eighteen communities in this country, four of which are located in Ohio. He is also a firm believer in spiritualism, and advocates the ideas of this class of people with no small degree of zeal, and more than ordinary ability. The little book is well worth reading on various accounts, and especially so, as it gives many of the peculiar traits of the Shakers.

GET THE BEST.—We recommend Sunday schools that are desirous of securing the very best library books published, to send a stamp to J C Garrigues & Co., Publishers of the Sunday School Times, 608 Arch st., Philadelphia, Pa., and request a copy of their valuable illustrated descriptive catalogue of choice Sabbath school publications.

YOUNG AMERICA.—This bright little Magazine is full of good things, and as great a favorite with the children as ever. One of the causes of its popularity is because it enters right into the childrens occupations and amusements, and makes itself a part of them. We recommend it to all parents who wish to procure a juvenile periodical which combines much and varied instruction with amusement and great originality. $1,50 a year with a premium. Address 838 Broadway, N. Y.

DEMOREST'S MONTHLY.—The last number of this popular monthly is always the best. Certainly its publisher will sustain its brilliant reputation, and spare no efforts or expense to render it the best prrior magazine in America. $3 per year. Address 838 Broadway, N. Y.

THE AMERICAN ODD FELLOW for September is received. Contents: An excellent original story, entitled Winning and Losing; a valuable and instructive paper on the French Working Classes; China and its Capital; History of Odd Fellowship; Letter from Europe; Scientific and Curious Facts; The Present and Future of the White Pine Mining region; Our Duty; The Patriarchs; An Odd Fellow abroad; Ladies department; Odd Fancies; News of the Order, &c., &c., Published by John W Orr, No. 96 Nassau st. N. Y. $2 per year.

DIED—On the 2d inst., in this city, at the residence of his son-in-law, NATHANIEL BARNEY, of Nantucket, Mass., in his 77th year. The remains were taken to Nantucket for interment.

The Poughkeepsie Eagle of the 4th inst, brings the above announcement, and while the writer hereof had no personal acquaintance with the deceased, he can claim a sort of knowledge that justifies him in bearing testimony to his great worth as a man and a Christian of the best possible type.

During his now four score years he was never known to relax his firm opposition to oppression of every sort, and particularly to human slavery, making his opposition manifest by such means as he was thereunto moved. Never failing to keep up with the the spirit of the times he wielded a pen of no common power but always in a spirit of kindness, characteristic of the religious society of which he was an ornament. A Quaker of the faith that has sustained itself under all trials, he has left to those who survive him a name surrounded with blessed memories.

The latest communication your correspondent was favored with from his pen was the following which is worthy a place anywhere. I am led, therefore, to ask you to publish it as a specimen of his mental and physical labor but two months before passing to his final rest. R. H. F.

Slavery in Massachusetts.

FIRST TESTIMONY AGAINST SLAVERY.

A published lecture, with the above title, delivered by ex-governor Washburn, before the Massachusetts Historical Society will always be valuable as a reference. The New Bedford Mercury in making selections from it, says truly: "It gives us the story, often told, but never before so well or thoroughly, of slavery in the Bay State. In view of the bitter and persistent determination of certain writers in New York to disparage the efforts of Massachusetts in the cause of personal freedom, this exhaustive and reliable contribution of ex-governor Washburn is as timely as it is able."

Every person who has been interested in the progress of anti-slavery, and especially such as are connected with the society of the Friends, will regard the priority of action as settled by the following extract, viz:

"The record of how the people of Massachusetts stood in respect to the institution of slavery among them would be greatly imperfect if it omitted to mention the part which the Quakers of Nantucket took in the attempts to suppress it." * * *

Following an account of their proceedings as our guide, there can be but little doubt that this body of Christians deserve the honor of being the first association who made open war upon slavery in this country, or, so far as I have discovered in the world. The Friends at their Philadelphia yearly meeting in 1688, had begun a discussion without taking any decided action; but the Friends of Nantucket, moved and aroused by the fervid eloquence of a distinguished preacher of that denomination, a daughter of Tristam Coffin, and the wife of Nathaniel Starbuck, made a public protest and declaration, "that it was not agreeable to the truth for Friends to purchase slaves and hold them for the term of life." This was in 1716.

The record of the Philadelphia Y. M. was equivocal and non comittal, in 1688, viz:

It was adjudged not to be so proper for this meeting to give a positive judgment in the case, it having so general a relation to many other parts, and therefore at present they forbear it."

Many of the descendants of Mary Starbuck have, from her day to the present, been among the most active and devoted representatives of the anti-slavery sentiment of the country. Her grandson, Elihu Coleman, a distinguished minister, wrote a powerful testimony in 1729-30 (the original of which I have carefully preserved) which was published in 1733, and again at a later period. Unavoidably passing over scores of other worthy co-working descendants, one individual name presents itself in this connection. Lucretia Mott about a century after the death of her maternal ancestor (1717) commenced her earnest appeals for the oppressed and down-trodden; and, now, after a continuous service of fifty years, the unfaltering advocate of a fuller and more equal recognition of the immunities and rights which attach to humanity, irrespective of color, sex and condition, or indeed of any of the mere outward circumstances or accidents incident to it.

The Gov. quotes the pertinent appeal from Chester, Pa., Quarterly Meeting Philadelphia Y. M. in 1729, viz: "Inasmuch as we are restrained by the rules of discipline from being concerned in fetching or importing negro slaves from their own country, whether it is not as reasonable that we should be restricted from buying them when imported?"

There is a peculiar significance in this language from the fact, stated by the venerable John Woolman, so kindly spoken of in the writings of Charles Lamb, that when he was in Newport in 1760, he was pained to see slaves imported from Africa by a member of the Society of Friends, then on sale there by the importer."

This tribute to John Woolman is most appropriate. The unceasing labors of this good man were effective in bringing the Society of Friends to anti-slavery position. He died in 1772, having lived only to see the disciplinary action of Rhode Island Y. M. in 1770. This was followed by Phil. Y. M. in 1776; Maryland and North Carolina severally, in 1777 and Virginia in 1784.

John Woolman pursued no temporizing course neither could any unkind manifestations or opposition turn his righteous testimony backward! Meekly and resignedly he unveiled the iniquity of ownership in man," and while he declared that "Tears were his meat day and night," he pointed, as with Propetic inspiration, to the Nation's late "Baptism of blood," when, in 1746 he said, "In future the consequences will be grevious to posterity. I express it hath appeared to me, not at once, nor twice but as a matter fixed on my mind;" and in 1758 "It may be by terrible things in righteousness, God may answer us in this matter!" It was probably this clear conviction which gave to his ministry the inspiration and power for which it was distinguished.

A century intervened, but the penalty came; and who is he that can measure it either in its present or its far-reaching consequences?

By the foregoing data we see that the Friends of Nantucket Quarterly Meeting were more than fifty years in advance of either of the Yearly Meetings, and hence we may accredit a writer in the New Bedford Mercury years ago, "that at the end of the 18th century one-third of the people of Nantucket refused the products of slavery, from conscientious scruples."

The same regard to justice and equity in the individual, has secured from the Lecturer the following characteristic tribute:

"The staunch old Quaker, William Rotch, Sr., without waiting, as it is said, for any action of the court, resolved to pay the lay of a black seaman, in a whaling voyage to himself, instead of his master, on the ground that the bill of rights had made him free. And the court sustained him in so doing."

I have been surprised at the ignorance which has existed touching the early anti-slavery agitation. A writer in the Boston Daily Advertiser, as late as 1867, assumed that Doct. Hopkins, of "Minister's Wooing" memory, 'preached the first anti-slavery sermon;' when the truth is, he was not born till years after the action of the Nantucket quarterly meeting, nor was he settled in Newport till 1770.

Thus we have seen that from 140 to 150 years ago, the enlightened vision of the friends of Chester and Nantucket, penetrated the dark hiding places of slavery, and placed a righteous verdict upon human chattelism! To them the religion of Jesus embraced the Divine attributes of justice, mercy and truth, and that it was only as they practically deferred to these, that they could assume to have any just conception of their obligations and duties as professing Christians.

And with reference to the record of that distant period, the prophetic words of James Russell Lowell are peculiarly significant—

Based on a faithful heart and wearless brain;
Ye build the future fair, ye conquer wrong,
Ye earn the crown, and wear it not in vain!

Poughkeepsie, 7th Mo., '69. N. B.

The best illustration, says the Zanesville Courier that ever fell under our notice of the fact that illiberality on the part of a city or town is always a losing investment is that of Uhrichsville, Tuscarawas county. The Pan Handle railway desired to make it the point for doing their engine work. Their efforts to secure a suitable situation for their shops and yards were met with the illiberal policy of asking them an extravagant price for the same. The result was the purchasing of a site half a mile or more from Uhrichsville, and the establishing of a rival town now known as Dennison. It is a brisk wide-awake looking place, with active, enterprising inhabitants that are already giving promise of removing all that is worth removal of the town of Uhrichsville to the town of Dennison

The Bristol, Tenn., News, says of the curious statement made by Pollard in his life of Jefferson Davis of the secreting of important confederate documents—a statement which was at first dismissed as sensational, but now recurs with an appearance of truth:

It is very certain that but little of this correspondence ever fell into the hands of the federals, and neither they nor Mr Pollard have ever been permitted to examine it; for the writer of this saw that which is probably the most valuable, sealed and placed within the vaults of a Montreal bank not two years ago, and unless it has been removed within twelve months it yet remains there, secure against every intruder.

Wonders of Minute Workmanship.

In the twentieth year of Queen Elizabeth, a blacksmith, named Mark Scallot, made a lock consisting of eleven pieces of iron, steel and brass, all of which, together with a key to it, weighed but one grain of gold. He also made a chain of gold, consisting of forty-three links, and, having fastened this to the before mentioned lock and key, he put the chain about the neck of a flea, which drew them all with ease. All these, together, lock and key, chain and flea, weighed only one grain and a half. Oswaldus Northingerus, who was more famous even than Scallot for his minute contrivances is said to have made sixteen hundred dishes of ivory, all perfect and complete in every part, yet so small, thin and slender that all of them were included at once in a cup turned out of a peppercorn of the common size. Johannes Shad, of Mitelbrach carried this wonderful work with him to Rome and showed it to Pope Paul V. who saw and counted them with the aid of a pair of spectacles. They were so little as to be almost invisible to the eye. Johannes Ferrarius, a Jesuit, had in his possession cannons of wood with their carriages, wheels and all other military furniture, all of which were contained in a peppercorn of the ordinary size. An artist, named Claudius Gallus, made for Hyppolytus d'Este, Cardinal of Ferrara, representations of sundry birds sitting on the tops of trees which by hydraulic art and secret conveyance of water through the trunks and branches of the trees, were made to sing and clap their wings; but at the sudden appearance of an owl out of a bush, of the same artifice, they immediately became all mute and silent.

Delirium Tremens in the New York Hospital.

Dr. Roosa contributes to the September number of Putnam's Magazine a pleasant historical sketch of the New York Hospital, in which several incidents of practice in that venerable institution are narrated. The following passages describe the scenes in one ward:

"The ward devoted to the sufferers from mania-a potu, or delirium tremens—the 'del. trem.' as the nurses and house doctors were apt to call it—would alone furnish scenes for the pencil of the artist which might surpass those of Hogarth or Holbein, so frightful is the demoniac appearance of a man when the victim of his passions, and overcome with dread at the horrid shapes which his diseased brain has pictured. The visitor to such a ward, when it is well filled, would almost imagine that he had entered one of the portals of the regions of the lost.

One poor victim lies muttering to himself, and constantly picking his bedclothes, now and then rising up, and fixedly staring with horror delineated in every feature, on some fancied demon emerging from some crevice or corner. Another is hurling back, with awful blasphemy, the taunts and jeers with which his imaginary enemy is tormenting him, while in the grated room off the main ward, reserved for the most violent cases, a poor fellow is rushing madly about, fighting a mortal combat with what seems to him a real enemy. The straight jacket and well padded walls, however, protect him from doing himself any harm, while the strong men chosen as nurses for these patients cow them down with a steady look, and preserve a Satanic order in this pandemonium. Occasionally, however, a sufferer from the effects of strong drink, instead of fearful shapes and imagination, sees gentle spirits and dreams delightful dreams.

A smile is constantly playing on such lips, and he seems like a child dreaming of angels. I well remember a poor artist who had often suffered from delirium tremens, who told me that in his hours of insanity he saw images that Raphael or Angelo might have traced, and that visions of artistic beauty floated before him which he could never execute in his sober hours, and yet the period of remorse and intense physical suffering came to him, all the same.

It is said that one patient has been in the hospital more than a dozen times; but, as a rule, two or three attacks finish a career. The writer once heard an eminent professor of medicine say that he had no hopes whatever of the reform of a man who had once had delirium tremens. But this was before the days of inebriate asylums."

COUNTING WITHOUT THE HOST.—Apparently the whisky makers and dealers have not taken due notice of the fact that there have been great changes in the revenue department since Grant came in. Nearly three thousand barrels of whisky just seized in San Francisco will be an eye opener for some one.

Two hundred negroes are said to be studying for the priesthood in Rome. That is a sign that if the Pope is a shrewd propagandist, he is certainly not a bad humanitarian. These colored men are intended for their brethren in the south, to whom Rome's first argument is that it has educated two hundred of their kind.

"Does the dentist kiss you when he pulls your teeth, pa?"

"No, my son, why?"

"Oh, nothing; only he kissed ma, and she said it took all the ache away, and I guess it did, for she laughed all the way home."

While a mother was brooding over her poverty, her little son said, "Mamma, I think God hears when we scrape the bottom of the barrel!"

JOHN C. LEE,

Will be at Massillon on

Hon. J. A. Ambler

Hon. J. W. Underhill,

Will address the citizens of this place and vicinity to-morrow evening on the leading political topics of the day. As the majority of the crowd of three or four hundred, who heard Mr. Carey Saturday evening, were those who don't believe in his demagogue appeals listened to him attentively for more than two hours, will those who do believe in such sophistry be equally liberal, and go and hear Messrs. Ambler and Underhill? It has been given out that the meeting will be held in Madison Hall, but if the evening is pleasant would it not be better to have it in front of the American?

Mr. Carey uttered a great truth when he said there is no wealth without labor. He is probably worth ten or fifteen thousand dollars, and suppose, for illustration, a dollar represents a day's work. As he never did a days work how does it come that he has got the value of ten or fifteen thousand of other peoples days' works?

He is opposed to Chinese labor because they work cheap, and he don't deny but they do as much and do it as well as others. Does he of the horny hands, if he ever has occasion to employ working men, seek out those who charge the highest prices, when they do the labor no better than those who work cheaper?

Oh, those bondholders! There is Belmont of New York, one of the greatest bondholders, and he is president of the democracy of the United States.

The glory of Gen. Jackson was, that he was a hard money man, and that he killed the U. S. Bank—Pendleton and Carey are for making money plenty by multiplying paper money to any extent. That is, give you duebills to any amount and then refuse to pay them. Yet these are all democrats.

Death of Nathaniel Barney.

Our correspondent, R. H. F., has furnished a notice of the decease of the veteran anti-slavery laborer whose name appears at the head of this article. The following notice from the personal of the N. Y. Independent of the 16th is so fully and correctly descriptive of the man and his good deeds, that we transfer it to our columns.

"One by one the veterans of the anti-slavery cause who bore the burden and heat of the day, are passing away.

"This week we record the death of one of the noblest of the Spartan band, NATHANIEL BARNEY, formerly of Nantucket, who closed his career a few days since, at the home of his only daughter, in Poughkeepsie. He was a Hicksite Quaker; but however deficient may have been his creed he was as Christianlike as any man we ever knew. He was 'gentle and easy to be entreated full of mercy and good fruits.' To do the will of God as manifested in his own heart was to him more than meat and drink; and hence he was quick to respond to the cry of the bondman, and ready to endure hardness as a soldier in the cause of freedom.

"He was among the earliest to respond to Garrison's demand for immediate emancipation, and to the very last he was found faithful. 'The memory of the just is blessed.'"

General Samuel Fenton Carey.

This distinguished personage did Massillon the honor of making the people a visit and a speech last Saturday evening, when he ventilated himself some two and a half hours in front of the American, on what he called the living issues of the day. The staple of his protracted harangue consisted in regular demagogue sophistical appeals, not to a manly motive, but to the baser passions, and abuse and misrepresentation of the men and party to which he once professed to be allied. One or two historical reminiscences of this Carey may answer to illustrate the man. In 1867, March 19, he wrote—

"The party that opposed the government in its efforts to crush out the the rebellion, and organize conspiracies in Ohio to aid traitors, the party that denounced Lincoln as a tyrant and usurper, and our soldiers as 'hirelings' and 'dogs;' the party that denounced the war as a failure, and tried to make it so; the party that dissuaded men from enlisting, and persuaded them to desert when they had enlisted; the party in congress that opposed submitting the amendment abolishing slavery, and in all our state legislatures opposed the ratification of that amendment when submitted; this party, that now favors the admission to the halls of congress of the most conspicuous leaders of the rebellion without conditions; this party, steeped in crime and covered with infamy, will doubtless be true to its instincts and consistent in its record, by opposing this (negro suffrage) amendment."

Those who heard him Saturday night will remember that he was not opposed to negro suffrage—not he—but a large portion of his talk was against the fifteenth amendment.

In anticipation of Carey's visit at Canton on Mouday evening of this week, the Rep and Rep of last week published the following little hits of history. As our Canton neighbors had the pleasure of reading it some seven years ago, and again last week, before S. Fenton C. visited them a second time, with his coat well turned, so we think our people will enjoy its perusal after hearing the horny fisted individual. It is probable our Bub, who never knew what it was to change his political base will take a different notice of Carey this time. Carey wont be the "temperance blackguard" he was then, but a model expounder of copperhead repudiation.

Gen. Sam. Carey, the greatest working man (never did a day's work in his life) in the world, will flourish his horny palm, and give his raven locks to the breeze, in this place on Monday evening, So says the Democrat in big type. We wonder if Carey remembers his speech in this place July 4th, 1862, and his skunk story, the skunk being the democracy which would stink itself out if left alone; also his codfish biscuit story causing the eater of his democratic parable to exclaim, "I say, Cale, there is something dead here." Wonder if he ever saw certain observations in the Stark County Democrat, of July 9th, 1862, upon said Fourth of July speech, to wit, as follows:

(From the Democrat, July 9th, 1862.)

Carey, a noted temperance blackguard, of Cincinnati, got sixty dollars for holding fourth in this place on last Friday! The committee surely could have got a blackguard nearer home, for less money!

The procession to the fair ground consisted of the band wagon, two carriages, filled mostly with women and children, and one old manure wagon; and the few who listened to Carey were mostly women and children! It was, indeed, a great failure?

In the evening this Cincinnati blackguard held forth from the balcony of the Bull Head Hotel, and, in the true abolition ruffian style, advocated the "rail and the halter" most earnestly. It was a fire-eating John Brown harangue, but to the credit of our people be it said no general applause was bestowed.

Blackguard Carey did not explain the tax law. He went in for the nigger, and hanging white folks.

Old Pete Kaufman rode to the grove in the carriage with Hindoo temperance Carey, instead of riding Col. T. S. Webb's mule horse. It is supposed that old Pete tried it, but that Jack, being a Hindoo, kicked up and threw his load.

Aby Kelly did not come. Folger disappointed his friends. John Brown Jr., was not well. Helper was busy. The sixty dollars brought Carey—most any blackguard would come for that.

THE STATE FAIR, held at Toledo five days of last week, was very numerously attended, and the favorable weather was most propitious for its success. Immense numbers of people were present, and the exhibibition in the various branches of industry unprecedented, while the agricultural products were never better represented. Horses, cattle, and everything which goes to make up these annual state exhibitions were all there. Ohio may may well be proud of her productions, whether of manufacturing skill, agricultural wealth, mineral resources, and everything that marks improvement and prosperity. In the competition for every character istic of a model state Ohio will not always be reckoned as third, for there are evidences, of this fact, such as were witnessed at Toledo the past week are proofs. Of the fair the Toledo Commercial of the 17th says—

As stated in yesterday's Commercial, so far as display of articles was concerned, the success of the state fair was then placed beyond all precedent, the entries exceeding those of any former year over 600. It then only remained to learn the financial result, which depended on the attendance. This point was effectually settled by the beautiful weather of yesterday, which brought to the grounds very nearly if not fully, forty thousand people, giving a revenue of $10,000 for the day, a large sum than ever before received in the same time. With fair weather to-day, the attendance will not be much less. The fair closes this afternoon.

The Toledo Commercial of the 18th inst. thus alludes to the success of the state fair, held at that city:

Close of the Fair—The Result.

The Twentieth Ohio State Fair, which opened in this city on the 13th, closed yesterday.

The treasurer's reports are not so far made up as we write to enable us to speak definitely as to cash balances, but we are informed that the secretary delivered to the treasurer for the Fair 78,426 admission tickets, and that only about 1,574 are left. thus showing the attendance of visitors to have reached the unprecedented number of seventy-nine thousand. The largest number of tickets sold at any previous fair, was 71,725, at Dayton, in 1867: thus placing Toledo 3,663 ahead of the highest figures.

The aggregate receipts are estimated at about $28,000, against $25,000 last year. The amount for admittance is much larger than in '68, while that for rentals is not as great, competition last year having run them up somewhat beyond the paying point. Taken together, the two fairs will net a larger sum, over and above expenses, than on any previous years.

Such is the pecuniary view of the case. In other respects, the fair has been no less a brilliant success. Foremost, we may name its result as an exhibition of the extent of resources and improvement of Toledo and the extensive region from which she draws her important trade. When it was proposed to locate the fair at this point, it was strenuously, and we doubt not sincerely, urged, that to do so would subject the society to the hazard of serious pecuniary loss. The press of at least one competing city sneered at the idea of thus going away from the sections where both exhibitors and visitors were to be found, merely to please Toledo and the people hereabouts. So plausible was this view that even the Board, while compelled by the terms of their offer to come here, did so, as they state in their letter to Mayor Kraus, published elsewhere, with serious misgivings as to the result. It was thought the local strength of Toledo was not sufficient to make up for the deficiencies of the new county upon which largely the country must depend articles for exhibition and visitors. But the result has completely exploded all such apprehensions and shown the arrangement in the language of President Fellington to have been one of the "best moves" yet made. Instead of proving a failure and a burden upon the society, the Toledo Fairs stand out as the most successful, in all respects, of the twenty now held, not even accepting those of the Western Reserve held at Cleveland, and of the Miama Valley at Layton. With the youngest city and newest surrounding country, Toledo comes out ahead. We think such a result may well be a source of satisfaction and pride to our citizens and those of the county which so largely contributed thereto.

Not the least noticeable of the features of the fair, was the extraordinary degree of order, sobriety and good feeling which distinguished it through out. With an aggregate attendance of over 80,000 persons, of whom one half were assembled in a single day, there was not an act of violence or other event to disturb the general peace and security.

To the Electors of Perry Township.

The undersigned would most respectfully announce his name as a candidate for Justice of the Peace, to be voted for at the approaching October election, and solicits your suffrage. In making this announcement I feel that I am not violating any of the usages of the republican party, to which I have strictly adhered for the past twenty years, during which I have resided in this township. And I do this for the reason that at the primary election for nominating county officers no notice was given by the central committee man that a candidate was to be voted for on that day, and I made no arrangements or preparation to come before you, not knowing that a candidate was being voted for at the said primary election until too late to do so with a fair chance of success. Therefore I can but regard the announcement of the nomination of a candidate at said primary election to be not only out of place but irregular and not in accordance with the rules of the party, as it was done without the usual notice given for such a nomination. Hence for the reasons above stated, and in the absence of a call for a meeting to nominate, I therefore feel under the circumstances, that I am justifiable in coming before you, the Electors of Perry township, as a candidate for re-election in October next, without violating any honorable principle as a republican. EDWIN JARVIS.

At a collection lately made at a fair city fair, a young lady passed the plate to a rich man noted for his stinginess. "I have nothing," was his curt answer. "Thee take something, sir," she replied; "You know I am begging for the poor."

An English farmer chose his seed wheat with such care, and cultivated it with such skill, that his heads increased in length from four to eight inches; the berries from 45 to 125 in a head, and the number of stalks from a seed from 15 to 52.

Boston expended $1,329,287 on her schools during the past year. Among the items was one of $14 000 to furnish books to indigent children.

The Cleveland Herald of yesterday says:—

The Tuscarawas Valley R. R. Co.

The commissioners met to day in pursuance of a notice given, to open books for subscription to the stock of the company, but determined to postpone the opening until the 20th day of October next.

The postponement was advised by several of our business men who are in sympathy with the enterprise, but who are of the opinion that the whole projected railroad, of which this is only a link, should be at one and the same time presented to our citizens. The enterprise which strongly commends itself to us, is a railroad from Cleveland via. Berea, Medina, Massillon, Dover and New Philadelphia, to an intersection with the Pan Handle Road The Tuscarawas Valley Railroad constitutes but a link (and that, too, a link distant from Cleveland,) of this enterprise. It is probable that a new organization will be effected before the claim of the company upon our city shall be presented, and one extensive enough to cover the whole enterprise so important to our interests.

Here is another bit of wisdom from the Memphis Avalanch, which we commend to the attention of the negro-hating democracy, north. The Avalanch says:

We cannot rid ourselves of the colored man if we desired to do so. It is, therefore, the duty of the whites to see to it that the negro be made useful to himself, his race and to the community in which he lives. The first duty is to cease sneering at the negro. It is true he may be illiterate but that is no fault of his. The negro should not be sneered at because he is illiterate, when white men made it a crime to educate him. Crime is usually the result of ignorance, and this fact will account for the wickedness and general worthlessness of the illiterate inferior race. The next great duty is to show that there should be no antagonism between the whites and blacks; that their interests are mutual and their destiny the same.

The Contrast.

This is the map of the campaign: on one side a soldier of blameless record, patriotism unimpeached, abilities unquestioned, and an enviable history as officer, governor and man, representing a party which, with all its faults, has honestly striven and is still striving to secure all men a fair chance in the world, keep the nation undivided and prosperous, and pay its just debts in an honest way; on the other, a smooth spoken politician, a hater of the very name of republicanism, a man who threw as many obstacles in the way of the government when it was struggling to save itself from overthrow, a sympathizer with the enemies of his country, representing a party which would have gone to pieces long before now if it had not a faint hope of keeping the country in hot water a few years longer by withholding the ballot from the negro. Between these men, between these parties, how long need any American citizen hesitate in choosing? What say you, soldiers, and you who lay wreaths on soldiers' grave—do you vote for Hayes or Pendleton?—Springfield Republican.

The democratic party talk loudly of their devotion to retrenchment and reform. The following summary of their doings in the last legislature will show how nearly their actions conform to their professions. It has been shown beyond dispute:

1. That the Fifty-eighth General Assembly has added more largely than any that ever existed, to the evils resulting from changes and additions upon the statute books.

2. That it sat longer, at a higher per diem, and did worse work than any other legislative body in the history of the state.

3. That it expended money profligately on party favorites, and for unusual and extraordinary purposes.

4. That it authorized local burdens almost without limit, and at a rate per cent. unprecedented in the history of our state.

And that it did many other damaging and objectionable things, to the detriment of the prosperity of the state. All of which were done after riding into power on the cry of retrenchment and reform.

Tax payers, how do you like such retrenchment as this? Do you want two more years of it?

The Albany Atlas charges Seymour, Church, Green and other rural members of the party in New York with the crime of having hid the democracy for the past twelve years "in their cheese presses and hay lofts." We think it much more probable that their cow yards and compost heaps were used for the purpose.

The democrats make a good deal of fun about Butler's eyes, and say he can look in a dozen directions at one and the same time. The fact encourages the hope that he may possibly be able to make out the precise character of the democratic platform and policy.

DIED—On the 20th inst., LINTON W. KING, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. King, of this city, aged nearly 11 years.

R. D. Arthur, a noted counterfeiter, was arrested a few days ago, on a steamer running between Dubuque and M'Gregor. Arthur declares that in 1868, he was worth in hard cash, $30,000, but says that he has spent it all in dissipation. Some years ago, he purchased an interest in a democratic paper at West Union, and from writing democratic leaders he naturally gravitated to counterfeiting, an occupation he has continued to pursue ever since, his main operations being confined to M'Gregor and vicinity.

It is said to be a common practice in Paris to hire poor people to attend fashionable churches so that the preachers can say that they always have crowded houses. Two or three sous pay for a worshiper.

We, the Druggists of Massillon, call the attention of our customers to the letters published below of the wonderful efficacy of Dr Roback's Stomach Bitters, Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Blood Purifier, and Dr. Roback's Scandinavian Blood Pills. We have been selling these medicines long enough to know that they are all they are recommended to be, and that the certificates of cures published are true.

DR. C. W. ROBACK,

Dear Sir:—Last fall my wife had the Liver Complaint so bad she was able to sit up but a few minutes at a time. I had a physician doctoring her for some time, but the medicine he gave her seemed to do her but little or no good. I was advised to get her a bottle of your Bitters, and let her try them, and see if they would help her. So I thought if one bottle would be good two would be better, and I got her two bottles, and when she had taken the last bottle she could do most of her house work. I got her one more which entirely cured her, and she looks the best I have seen her for four years. We recommended them to several of our neighbors who have used them with great success.

THE FIREMEN.—We gave a rather disulatory account of the firemens' parade at Wooster on the 9th. The Republican of that place has a pretty full report of the days doings. It says some ten or fifteen thousand people were present. Four companies from Canton, two Massillon, five Wooster, two Galion, three Delaware, one Elyria, one New Philadelphia, and one Oberlin—in all seventeen companies, and seven bands of music. Judge McBride, president of the day, addressed the firemen and people, after which the trial of skill took place. In taking the prizes Canton, 2d class steamer, took first prize, silver trumpet, $125. Canton first-class hand engine, took first prize, trumpet, $150. Galion hand engine, 2d class, took first prize, silver trumpet $100. Vigilant, 3d class, Massillon, took first prize, silver trumpet, $100, and sweepstakes prize, $75 in greenbacks. Independent hose company of Massillon, took silver tipped buck horns, $100. Hook and ladder company of Oberlin took silver tipped buck horns, $100. The day was pleasantly spent, and good order characterized all that was done.

THE RE-UNION of the 104th, at Akron, on the 10th, we notice, in a sort of a round about way—for we have not received the Beacon—was a grand success. Gen. Reilley of Wellsville, who was expected to address those present, was not there, but the Mayor of Akron and Col. Jordan (of New Lisbon?) made appropriate speeches. The next meeting is to be at Salem, Sept. 8th, 1870. Capt. Taggart was elected president, and J. W. McClymonds, secretary. When is Massillon to be favored with a meeting of this sort?

Joseph Heckman, Esq., and son, were on the sick list for several days, last week, from fever, but both are now recovering, and soon will be able to be out. A few other cases of fever are in the city, but the general health of the people is quite as good as usual at this season.

One of the hell gates on Erie street was dried up the other day in consequence of a partner connected with the shebang taking all the money he could get and running off. Good as such institutions deserve. Would it not be well for property holders to be more cautious about renting their premises for such purposes? If they were to lease property to a den of thieves or for a place for nameless purposes, how would community look upon them? When they see the consequence of drunkenness can they morally excuse themselves for thus giving aid and comfort to the evils necessarily entailed by them?

We are obliged to Hon J. A. Ambler for a voluminous copy of the president's message and accompanying documents. Mr. A. has thus far been attentive to the wants of his constituants.

STARK COUNTY FAIR.—The Fair of the Stark County Agricultural Society will take place on their grounds, on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 28th, 29th, 30th, and Oct. 1st, 1869. The society have enlarged their capacious grounds, by some four or five acres, and increased their track to a half mile. These fair grounds are now very extensive and beautiful, unsurpassed by any in the state probably.

Every effort is now being made to make this the best ever held by the society. It is the twentieth annual fair of the society.

We understand that Mr. S. Loew, the popular clothier, is going east this week for a new fall stock of clothing, so look out, boys, for bargains.

It is hoped that our lecture committee will be successful in securing some first-class lecturers the coming season, as the opera house will be prepared for such entertainments in proper season. But the committee must be sustained by our citizens, and we hope they will be. Some weeks ago Mr. Locke, (Nasby) sent us a circular stating that he is preparing to lecture the coming season, and his services can be had by proper efforts.

Perhaps the idea is an absurd one, but to us it looks as if some of those who are constantly sucking the smoke out of a stinking pipe might make themselves practically useful by ascending to the top of those houses that are cursed with bad flues, and sucking the smoke out of kitchens and other rooms. This would certainly improve the temper of many suffering wives and cooks who are annoyed with the murky smoke of coal. If the coal flavor is not as narcotizing as tobacco smoke a few leaves and stems of the weed put on the fire might produce the desired result.

Our entire force in this office are under special obligations to Mr. Wm. Anderson for a basket of the finest peaches we have seen this season. They (the peaches) were both large and luscious, for the necessary experiments were soon made to ascertain the latter fact. The truth is, a printing office is a poor place to keep such fine fruit any length of time—no use to try.

For the benefit of many of our patrons we this week publish the Cleveland market, and expect to continue doing so hereafter. We shall also try to keep our own market figures up to the times.

Mr. Bayless commenced operations at his manufacturing establishment on Monday after a brief recess for rest and fixing up things. The enterprise and business tact of the proprietor of this machine shop has been crowned with success, and the prospect is, that it will so continue.

The locomotive is advancing upon us from the north—it now comes as far as Bridgeport, about four miles from us, bringing ties, rails and other material with which to aid in perfecting the road; we may soon look for it here, as much of the work in the way of grading has been done, even in this vicinity.

The freight house has been removed to the new foundation just laid for it, and will soon be ready for the business for which it was designed, and it is expected that work on the new depot will ere long be commenced. They are pushing things all about the railroad premises at this place.

Erie street is still progressing. Mr. Knobloch has put up one of those new and convenient awnings in front of his grocery.

A brief but pointed communication appears in to-day's paper by A. Bowman, Esq., in reference to the wanton, cruel and useless destruction of the birds. It is time such practices were stopped. Not only does the music of these songsters cease, but their usefulness in the destruction of numerous insects that are a plague to the farmer and everybody else, is a consideration which should appeal to the selfishness of every one, if no higher motive could be reached. The failure to a great extent, of some of our choicest fruits is attributable to the loss of the birds. Instead of uselessly murdering them they should be protected by everybody.

Gen. Scarey remained here over Sunday, and politician as he is, made so free as to attend the M. E. Sunday school and take an active part in the exercises. Perhaps he was invited—we have not heard as to that. It is not probable that he preached repudiation of honest debts there, as he did the evening before.

Saturday, Sunday, and Monday were very very hot days. the mercury rising on each day, respectively, to 84°, 86°, 88°.

Monday was show day here, and we were regaled with the music of singing and instruments, mingling with the voices of soap peddlers and the cure all man, the din of a tinker mending coffee pots, and other noises too numerous to mention. In our vicinity good order characterized the day, and the evening was comparatively quiet, as a great many attended the circus. which was crowded.

P. T. BARNUM, the Great Showman, is known by reputation everywhere. J. B. Burr & Co., the enterprising firm at Hartford, Conn., are about issuing the auto biography of this distinguished man under the title, Struggles and Triumphs, or forty years Recollections It proposes to be a work of absorbing interest, replete with humor, anecdotes and details of practical jokes. While there is much in it of a transcient or evanescent character, much of the book will consist of substantial good sense, and a plain narrative of what the boss showman of our age has passed through. In the book will be embraced Barnum's celebrated lecture, The art of money getting, with rules for success in business. It is to be sold only by agents, who are now canvassing. Embellished with numerous fine engravings. Agents wanted everywhere. Address J. B. Burr & Co., 18 Asylum st., Hartford, Conn. The table of contents presents a lively glimpse of the forthcoming book. Printers ink was his talisman.

The show business seems lively in this part of the state. Bryan's circus made us a visit on last Monday, and Col. Ames' circus and menagerie, of New Orleans is now exhibiting not far from here, and may reach here during the season. Others are also perambulating this part of Ohio, astonishing the people, and gathering stamps.

Beside the usual items incident to a live town Salem, within a few days has been favored with one or two of an extra character. A young man and young woman got married (nothing new), but the lady's brother disliked the match, and sought an opportunity to punch his brother-in-laws head, and in doing so struck another man on the head with a poker, severely injuring him. The striker ran off and was arrested at Cleveland. Held to bail for trial. Another enterprising individual put himself somehow mysteriously in possession of Mr. Wilson's horses and carriage—ran off—was arrested at Youngstown, and the justice held him for trial in $4000. He could not raise the necessary bail, so he is now in jail, As an offset to these eccentricities the Y. M. C. A. are holding prayer meeting in the hotels at stated times. Perhaps this arrangement carried out may result in better behavior.

Our first class nonpareil job press was purchased at Cincinnati, through the agency of G. S. Newcomb & Co., of Cleveland, who we find to be the right class of gentlemen to deal with, as they are correct, prompt, obliging, and thus have no difficulty in pleasing their customers. Our fraternity of printers in this region of Ohio, who have not yet dealt with them will do well to send orders through Newcomb & Co., for everything in the printing business, as they furnish material on the same terms as the manufacturers charge. Doubtless many have been thus accommodated by them, and this will assuredly extend their business.

M. Davidson, the proprietor of the Philadelphia new clothing store, has just gone for a new stock of goods, which he will soon have on hand and in the market here.

L. Schaufele, who constantly keeps on hand lots of jewelry, clocks, watches, musical instruments—and all sorts of nice things in his line—has just received a large and new stock, and is now prepared to meet the demands of his customers for anything needed in his line.

Within the last week we notice that fresh fish are for sale. They are a popular article among most people, and sell readily at first prices.

Hydrophobia not a Summer Disorder.

MASSILLON, Sept. 20th, 1869.

EDITOR OF THE INDEPENDENT:—

Dear Sir,—You will not have forgotten that last summer our city was unnecessarily frightened from its propriety by rumors of mad dogs in our streets, and you will remember also how serious was the discussion as to the propriety of muzzling all dogs during the summer months.

This measure I was then, (and am now) utterly opposed to, as an act of unnecessary cruelty to the dog, at the season when he requires the largest liberty to loll out his tongue, whereby only he perspires—and I did so for the reason that rabies is not a warm weather disease—and that in hot climates hydrophobia is uncommon.

I call your attention to this subject at this time, to request your publishing the enclosed slip from the statistics of the Board of Health in New York city.

This cold logic of statistics is worth a thousand arguments on the subject, and I commend it to your readers for their information, and as the best proof that the dog-days (when Sirius, the Dog Star, is in the ascendant) have nothing to do with hydrophobia, that dread disease fortunately more talked of than witnessed, although attributed to every unlucky animal which has a fit, and which, unable to speak for itself, has to submit to its doom, those who kill him excusing the act by shouting mad dog.

Yours &c,, H.

HYDROPHOBIA IN THIS CITY.

From statistities in the office of the board of health, it appears that the number of deaths from hydrophobia in this city during eighteen years is 41, and that they have occurred quite as frequently in cool weather as in warm. In 1851 the deaths numbered 4: in 1852, only 1; 1853, 1; 1854, none; 1855, 4; 1856, 3; 1857, 2; 1858, none; 1859, 2; 1860, none; 1861—in July, 1; February, 1; May, 1; August, 1; December 1.—5; 1862, in May, 1; 1863—in January. 1; April, 1; October, 1—3; 1864 in July, 1; 1865—in March, 1; April, 1; December, 1—3; 1866—in July, 1; September, 1—2; 1867—in April, 1; May, 2; September 1—4; 1868—in August 1; 1836—in January, 1; August, 1; September, 2—4.

Shooting the Birds.

I would call attention to the fact that we are being fast deprived of the cheering songs and delightful presence, as well as the useful services of all our birds. 'Tis most deplorable that our community is nearly destitute of these good little friends that do so much to cheer the weary laborer at his hard toil, while their place is being filled by sheep dogs and two-legged scallawags. And must we continue to endure the abominable imps strolling everywhere, through our groves, orchards, lanes, fields, and highways, shooting away our little birds. And especially on the Sabbath day, bang, bang, bang, goes the gun, and nearly every pop one bird less. The cheering pee wee, the pleasant blue bird, the lively tit bird, and the sweet singing lark, all, from the tiny humming bird to the clever robin, and the glorious bobwhite, must fall before the prowling skunks. It is too provoking. How often are we tempted to put a load of buck shot into the backs of these contemptible pests, and if any of such stuff could read this, we advise them to keep clear of our premises, lest we be tempted above that we are able to bear. Who will suggest a remedy? Do you say we have a law, fine them; pshaw! fine a beggar and take your pay in lice. But I will stop and wait for some one to say what shall be done.

Yours, under grevious provocation,
A. BOWMAN.

Sunday School.

On last Sunday morning coming to the Methodist church, half an hour before the time of the regular service, I stepped into the Sunday school where I found teachers and scholars busily engaged at their lessons; the superintendent, Mr. J. B. Wert, at his appropriate place, while Mrs. Sarah E. Harsh, the female superintendent, in her department as busily engaged in the infant department in charge of Miss Runyon, the children repeating verses and Scripture lessons; Rev. W. Lynch, the pastor, on hand. Taken altogether a stranger is favorably impressed, and it is but justice to say that the school is in a very prosperous condition; the superintendent reported numbers present, 5 officers, 20 teachers, 221 scholars, and 10 visitors, in all 256. Now comes the singing, of which Massillonians are very fond; Prof. Ickes at the instrument and leading off and the school joining in. The music rings out loud, clear and melodious. It is worth a visit and will well repay the time spent in listening to the Sabbath songs. In the singing department there is efficient help at hand, Mrs. Frank Church, Mrs. Hardy, and Amelia Buckius, take turns at the instrument and lead off. Before closing this brief notice I must not omit to mention that the superintendent introduced Gen. Carey, of Cincinnati, who made a few remarks to the school. and gave the very best advice, and impressed the sentiment that to be happy we must be good, by illustrations well said, deserving the thanks of all present. A VISITOR.

Massillon, Sept. 20th, 1869.

Gen. Carey.

By a notice in this day's paper it will be seen that Gen. Carey, of, Cincinnati, visited the Methodist Sunday school of this place, which shows a kindly feeling in that direction. But the contrast is very strange, indeed, when the day or evening previous, the General, in his political speech at the American, held up the church to the ridicule and contempt of his audience, in the manner in which he referred to one of its ministers in congress, when denouncing the dignitaries at Washington and the office holders generally. In his closing remarks to the soldiers of his audience, he again refered to a private member of the church in a manner which some would call slander of a lady in private life. Such a course pursued and persisted in will not build up the cause and party for which the general is laboring so hard. ONE WHO HEARD.

A colored man in Richmond, Va., some eighteen years ago bought his freedom of his master, and then worked hard, early and late, and was soon able to buy his wife. He has been prospering since, and now owns the finest livery hack stand in the state. His fortune is now estimated at $50,000. His old master, who, at the time of the evacuation of Richmond, was worth half a million, became ruined. The former slave, being apprised of his misfortunes took him to his house and gave him everything he desired. Shortly after this the old man died. His funeral was a large and expensive one, and he was borne to a cemetery lot paid for by his old slave, who also paid for his funeral outlay, and over him raised a handsome monument, paid for with the colored man's money. The widow of the deceased slaveholder lives in a house presented by the colored man, who also supplies her with every comfort.

C. F. GALTON'S DYSPEPSIA REMEDY.

In offering this remedy to the public, we feel confident that every statement we make in regard to its curative properties will be fully verified by all who avail themselves of it. The prescription has been used in this city nearly ten years, and has never failed to effect a permanent cure whenever used in accordance with the directions, and the patient has had sufficient strength of mind to abstain from rich and indigestible food for a short time. In cases of Heartburn, Waterbrash, Constipation, and Nervous Headache, arising from imperfect digestion, and all ailments which are produced from an abuse of that important organ, the stomach, it will afford permanent relief.

As an evidence that our statements can be fully relied upon, we refer the reader to the certificates below:

"For a number of years I was greatly afflicted with Dyspepsia, and although my stomach craved food, it would immediately reject it, should I eat anything, no matter how small the quantity. I was frequently compelled to leave the table without being able to take any nourishment. In a short time I became very much reduced in flesh, and was so weak that I was unable and unfit to attend to my business. My mind was in no better condition than my body, as I was continually oppressed with lassitude and depression of spirits. I tried all the patent medicines and prescriptions that I heard of, and some of these afforded me temporary relief, but in a short time I relapsed into my former condition.

"While suffering in this manner I heard of C. F. Galton's Dyspepsia Remedy, and concluded to try it. I had taken it but a short time when I began to feel relief, and continuing to take it, I soon could partake of my meals without any disagreeable feeling either while at the table or afterwards, and gained flesh rapidly. It is now nearly ten years since, and I have continued free from anything like a return of the Dyspepsia—I can therefore recommend it to any one suffering in like manner.

"Respectfully yours, ANDREW J. NICHOLSON.
"PITTSBURGH, March 20, 1860."

"This is to certify, that during the early part of the summer of 1868 my wife was much troubled with Dyspepsia. She had a severe pain in her side, her appetite was variable, and she became quite sallow. After having used two bottles of C. F. Galton's Dyspepsia Remedy, her appetite became good, she was relieved from the severe pain in her side, and her complexion became good again, all of which I attribute to the use of C. F. Galton's Dyspepsia Remedy, and I have recommended it to all my friends and acquaintances. All that I can do to make its wonderful properties known, you can rest assured will be done. JAMES A. SMITH.
"PITTSBURGH, PA."

If you are suffering do not hesitate to buy a bottle of C. F. Galton's Dyspepsia Remedy, and avail yourself of its curative properties.

Science Advances.

As soon as an article purporting to be of utility has been tested, and its merits endorsed by public opinion, unprincipled parties endeavor to replenish their depleted purses by counterfeiting, and substituting a spurious for the genuine article. Some time since mercury in the disguise of pills, powders &c., was given for all diseases of the stomach and liver, while quinine was freely administered for the chills. At length Hostetter's Stomach Bitters made their appearance, and an entire new system of healing was inaugurated. The beneficial effect of this valuable preparation were at once acknowledged and mineral poisons suffered to sink into the obscurity to which an enlightened age has consigned them. There have been many spurious bitters palmed upon the community, which, after trial have been found perfectly worthless, while Hostetters has proved a blessing to thousands, who owe to it their restoration to health and for many years we have watched the steady progress of Hostetters Stomach Bitters in public estimation, and its beneficent effects as a cure for all complaints arising from the stomach, of a morbid nature and we are free to say that it can be relied upon as a certain relief and remedy. Its proprietors have made the above preparation, after years of careful study and sitting, and are now reaping the reward claimed by this valuable specific, and which they so richly merit. It is the only preparation of the kind that is reliable in all cases, and it therefore demands the attention of the afflicted.

Feather Dressing.

THE UNDERSIGNED offer to the citizens of Massillon and vicinity the most successful Feather Dresser ever offered to the public, it proves to be exactly what all conditions and qualities of feathers, from entirely new to old and much cotton need to render them as perfect as the condition of the feathers will permit of, them being made. The cleansing is done entirely by steam, our facilities are such that we can take a bed and return it the same day, for the small sum of two dollars, Hair Mattresses renovated and made ready for use.

The Guide Post.

TRANSLATED FROM THE GERMAN.

D'ye know the road to th' bar'l of flour?
At break o' day let down the bars.
And plow y'r wheat fields hour by hour,
Till sundown—yes, till shine o' stars.

D'ye know the road where the dollars lie?
Follow the red cents here and there;
For if a man leaves them, I can guess
He won't have dollars anywhere.

D'ye know the road to poverty?
Turn in at any tavern sign;
Turn in—its tempting as can be,
There's bran new cards and liquor fine.

D'ye know what road to honor leads,
And good old age? a lovely sight!
By way o' temperance, honest deeds,
And trying to do y'r duty right.

And when the road forks any side,
And you're in doubt which one it is,
Stand still and let your conscience guide:
Thank God, it can't lead you far amiss.

Go, fearing God, but lovin' more!
I've tried to be an honest guide:
You'll find the grave has got a door,
And somethin' for you t'other side.

Acknowledged Superiority of Roback's Bitters.—These Far famed bitters are by all admitted to be, in their purity as a stimulant, their efficiency as medicine and strengthening properties as a tonic, superior to any other known compound. The government acknowledges this in issuing them to the army, and fathers acknowledge this in using them in their families.

Robacks Bitters are known throughout the civilized world, and as they are growing in public estimation continually, they will soon be the one great universal remedy, supplanting all similar preparations everywhere. 4t

We have watched the course of so many distressed, emanciated and forlorn dyspeptics of worn out and prostrated females, who have taken a new lease of life, and gradually received vigor, strength, health, and the power of social pleasure from the effects of Plantation Bitters, that we are not surprised at the testimonials daily received. It is a pleasure to do good in the world, then how full must be the measure of the proprietors of these celebrated Bitters.

TESTIMONIAL—Walter Muir, Esq., traveling salesman for the large wholesale drug store of French, Richards & Co., of Philadelphia, in a letter to R V Pierce, of Buffalo, N Y., says: "Within the past few months Dr Sage's Catarrh remedy has found upon my list a most promising place. There is in one good snuff of it more virtue than is contained in a dozen packages of its worthless rivals that flood the market. Rest assured that my appreciation of its merits, as realized personally in my own case, will urge me to use my best endeavors in introducing its sale thro' our house. Yours faithfully, WALTER MUIR.

Corporation Notice.

The undersigned having taken the preliminary steps, under the act entitled an act to provide for the creation and regulation of incorporated companies in the state of Ohio, and the acts amendatory and supplementary thereto, and having become a body corporate, by the name of the Tuscarawas Valley Railroad Company, for the purpose of constructing a railroad from the city of Massillon Stark county, Ohio, to New Philadelphia, Tuscarawas county, Ohio, do hereby order books to be opened for receiving subscriptions to the capital stock of said company: at the times and places following, to wit:

At the Merchants National Bank, at Cleveland, Ohio, from the 29th to the 30th of September next at the Empire Hotel, at Akron, Friday and Saturday, 1st and 2d of October; at the First National Bank in Massillon, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the 4th, 5th, and 6th of October; at Alex Garver's Drug Store, Navarre, Thursday, the 7th of October; at the Hotel at Zoar, Friday and Saturday the 8th and 9th of October: at Jesse Deardorff's Store, at Canal Dover, Monday and Tuesday, the 11th and 12 of October: and at the Exchange Hotel, at New Philadelphia, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the 13, 14th and 15th of October; and if ten per centum on the capital stock shall have been then subscribed, the stockholders of said company will meet at the American Hotel, in the city of Massillon, on Tuesday, the 19th day of October, 1869, between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M., and 6 o'clock, P. M., of said day, for the purpose of electing seven directors for said company and to transact such other business as may then come before said directors.

RECEIVED, per hands of James H Hunt, of the Security Life Insurance and Annuity Co., of New York Two Thousand dollars for the Insurance on the life of The A Ricks. I take great pleasure in bearing testimony to the promptness with which the Security pays her losses.
WM F RICKS, Administrator.

Though this company has demonstrated time and again the value of life insurance by distributing among the widows and orphans of

175 Members the sum of

Yet its losses in proportion to the number insured and amount of insurance, has been remarkably few and light, according to a compilation from the last published report of the Massachusetts Insurance Commissioner, showing the ratio of claims by death to policies issued during the last twelve months in the leading life insurance companies, thus:

Name of Company.	Ratio				Persons Insured.
Massachusetts Mutual	21	one	death	in every	476
New England Mutual	20	do	do	do	500
Etna	32	do	do	do	313
Connecticut Mutual	30	do	do	do	333
Equitable	30	do	do	do	333
Germania	41	do	do	do	244
Globe Mutual	28	do	do	do	357
Knickerbocker	42	do	do	do	238
Mutual Life	14	do	do	do	714
Mutual Benefit	32	do	do	do	312
New York Life	52	do	do	do	192
North American	29	do	do	do	345
Security	09	do	do	do	1111
American Popular	06	do	do	do	1667
Total ratio	29	do	do	do	345

The old companies are ever harping upon the ratio of their expenses and in proportion to business done; whereas, to every person seeking insurance the fact that the profit and loss account is very important, taken together

The cost of insurance depends upon the vitality of the company in which you insure.

And the best proof of inherent vitality is the low ratio of claims in the past. Those wishing to procure valuable life insurance can do so by calling on JAMES H HUNT, Esq., at Exchange Bank.

MANHOOD: How Lost, How Restored.

Just published, a new edition of Dr Culverwell's Celebrated essay
On the Radical Cure (without medicine) of Seminal Weakness, or Spermatorrhœa, induced by Self-Abuse: Involuntary Emissions, Impotency, Nervous Debility, and Impediments to Marriage generally: Consumption, Epilepsy, and Fits: mental and physical incapacity, etc.

The world renowned Author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience, that the awful consequences of self-abuse may be effectually removed without medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations, bougies, instruments, rings or cordials—pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his conditions may be, may cure himself cheaply privately, and radically.

This lecture will prove a boon to thousands and thousands.

Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, on receipt of 6 cents, or two postage stamps, by addressing the publishers.

Also, DR. CULVERWELL'S "Marriage Guide," price 25 cents. 3?4 3m
